

2018 Peddler's Village Fact Sheet

The late Earl Jamison created Peddler's Village in 1962 with the opening of a small number of shops and the flagship Cock 'n Bull Restaurant. Today the Village attracts 2 million annual visitors and consists of 63 independently owned and operated specialty shops, five restaurants, the 66-room Golden Plough Inn, Gigglesberry Fair family entertainment center and year-round festivals and events on 42 acres of landscaped gardens and winding brick pathways.

Located midway between Doylestown and New Hope in Lahaska, Pa., Peddler's Village is just 45 minutes from Philadelphia or the Lehigh Valley and one and one-half hours southwest of New York City.

For specific directions and restaurant hours, please visit www.peddlersvillage.com or call the Hospitality Center at 215-794-4000. Acres of free parking. No admission charges.
